Editor's Column

A tree surgeon friend stopped us on Ocean Avenue Friday.

"Francis is right," he said gently.

He was referring to our "This is nonsense" comment to the street commissioner's statement, quoted in last week's Pine Cone, that a city tree had been topped, so would die soon anyway, and should be removed.

We were glad that our tree doctor friend had caught us at that particular spot, in front of Putnam and Raggett's, because from there we could point out the pine on San Carlos Street, next to Staniford's Drug Store. It was looking a little skinned, since the street department had just trimmed off some of its top branches, but it is obviously alive. The council was given to understand, when they had it topped in 1938, that the sensible course would be to take it out because it wouldn't live more than two years.

Stella Guichard, over twenty years ago, was told by the tree experts that her grove of pines on the lot next to her drygoods store on Dolores Street—it's Mason's now—was infected with borers and would die. Stella had her pines topped, and though topped pines aren't supposed to live, they throve, giving shade for the begonia gardens that were a showplace until a few years ago, when the pines, still in good condition, were cut down to make room for a row of shops.

There was a bad infestation of borers one year back in the thirties and the council, becoming alarmed, brought a tree doctor down from San Francisco, and for $200 he went around town marking trees that would have to be cut down.

The council and the citizens were horrified, not at the $200 fee, though that was steep for those days—they were glad to pay it to get him out of town—but at the appalling number of beautiful pines he had marked for immediate destruction. Half the pines in the center strip of Ocean Avenue were included in the death list. Since the community of that day was not emotionally up to facing such extensive slaughter, the council decided that they'd just pretend there was nothing the matter with the trees.

Nobody knows what happened to the borers. Perhaps Carmel, like Salt Lake City, should put up a statue to some unknown bird or borer-enemy bug. Anyway, you can still see the doomed trees thriving handily in the center planting of Ocean Avenue, and here and there throughout town, on many a fine pine is still visible the mark the tree doctor placed on it over two decades ago, indicating that it was a sick tree, would be dead in a few months, and should be removed.

Since those days it has been the policy of Carmel City Councils to allow apparently dying trees to go ahead and die, if that is their destiny, and not until they are clearly dead and threaten to be-

Mayor Achieves Peace On Earth Until January 19

The city council is off the hook until after January 19. At Tuesday night's public hearing, the council tabled the Red Cross' appeal of the planning commission's decision to deny them a use permit to build in the residence district.

Mrs. Walter Nielsen, chapter chairman, told the council that the Red Cross executive committee had decided they would prefer to gerrymander the two lots they have bought on the southeast corner of Eighth and Dolores streets. so that the building would occupy the corner land and the parking lot they plan to sell to the proposed parking district, would face out on Eighth Street.

A gerrymander job would have to come before the planning commission in any case, so the two cool heads on the council, John Chitwood and Mayor Horace Lyon, steered the tabling-maneuver into port, assuming that the Red Cross would again ask the planning commission for a permit.

The following afternoon the Red Cross applied for a use permit and also asked for permission to gerrymander, and the commission set the public hearing for January 19.

At the council's hearing on whether or not the noise of operating the Foreign Car Center constitutes a nuisance, Oldtimer C. A. Watson, the Center's landlord, charmed everybody to pieces with

Foreign Student Drive On

The student council of Carmel High School has issued an appeal to the community for funds to finance its project of bringing a foreign student here for the school year 1955-56.

The appeal is stated in the form of a letter mailed to all Carmel box-holders yesterday, and signed by Principal Warren Edwards, student body president Jon Menand and seniors Pat Ricketts and Priscilla Clark, who this summer were selected by the American Field Service to represent their student body on a three months' residence with families in Germany.

The new project was largely instigated by Pat Ricketts and Priscilla Clark, along with graduates Pat Finley and Bruce Bixler who lived in Germany during the summer of 1953 under A.F.S. auspices.

"We four students feel that this was an inspiring and profitable experience and we would like to assist in the continuation of the student exchange program," the letter mailed yesterday states. "If Carmel High School is again to send another candidate abroad, we must first reciprocate by providing for a student from a foreign country to attend this school."

The student council hopes to raise $650 to be sent to the A.F.S. to cover a foreign student's transportation costs, and to arrange housing here for 10 months. The exchange student may come from one of 11 European countries. Two years ago a student from Germany attended the high school and lived with a local family.

The students' letter, which was drafted by the Student Council and approved by the student body, says "We feel that this is one of the best and most active means by which we can further good international relations. We sincerely hope that you, also, will be interested in our project, and that you

Carl Bensberg and his little German car are back from summering in a country where the hay is 30 percent wildflowers.

"You should smell it!"

He wallowed in music and scenery, took in the Vienna Music Festival and followed the Royal Chapel Choir into summer quarters in the Tyrol. He attended the Haydn Festival at Eisenstadt, in the Russian Zone, where Haydn's tomb finally holds his head, wrested only this year from the Vienna Friends of Music, who had it in a jar, pickled.

He was on hand, September 1, to watch the ceremony in front of the Winter Palace in Vienna when the goose-stepping Russians, gussied up fit to kill, turned over the inner city to the Americans for their four months' turn to rule.

"The Russians are the sloppiest soldiers in Europe, but on this occasion their uniforms really fit. They were picked men, all of a height and weight. The American Commander knew the Russians would make a thing of it so he got the crack American Band to come over from Salzburg and we did all right."

Bensberg cheerfully gives out tips about where you can get a liter of magnificent beer for 17 cents and hear the greatest music in the world for $1.80 per seat.

But Carmelites, next summer bound for Europe, should not delay getting in touch with him because he's going back as soon as it warms up a little over there. He wouldn't have come home when he did but, "Europe is no place for

Santa Catalina Christmas Pageant At Playhouse Today

Santa Catalina School for Girls will present its annual Christmas pageant this afternoon at 3:00 o'clock at the Golden Bough Playhouse.

This year's program, which is open to the public without charge, is called The Message of Christmas, and is based around mimes of pictures of Fra Angelico, accompanied by narration and chants from the liturgy by the choir. Tableaux include The Annunciation, The Visitation, The Birth of Our Saviour, The Homage of the Shepherds, The Coming of the Three Kings, and The Virgin Enthroned.

The pageant is directed by Marian Stebbins, with Angie Machado as choir director and Dorothy Heer, organist. Lighting effects are by Lee Crowe, Colin Kuster and Don Gunderson, and makeup by Dee Olivetti. Stephanie Smith is stage manager, assisted by Julie Work, Jane Howard, Fritzi Clark and Georgia Vincenz.

Principal parts in the production are taken by Sandra Stolich, The Blessed Virgin; Nona Van Buskirk, Saint Joseph, Mary Baumgartner, Archangel Gabriel; Joyce Downton, Angel of Prophecy; Kress Harris, Angel of Nativity; Pamela Gamble, Angel of Fulfillment; Sandra Lamb, Laurie Washburn, Margaret Dougherty, Donna Work, Eunice Hansen, Narrators. The cast also includes kings, gift bearers, shepherds, angels of the nativity, angels of adoration and the angelic choir.

Thirty Percent Of C. H. S. Students On Quarterly Honor Roll

Ninety students got their names on the Carmel High School's first quarter honor roll, which was distributed to all student body members yesterday.

The honor roll, which lists students earning a total of six points or better for the period of September to November, comprises 30% of the total enrollment of 300 students—an impressively high average. "A" grades count two points each, "B" grades one point each; "D", "F", or "Incomplete" grades in any of his six subjects disqualify the student from the Honor Roll.

The senior class drew the highest percentage, 35% on the honor roll, with 27 students qualifying. Second were the sophomores with 22 students, 30% of the class; third the juniors with 20 students, 28% of the class, and last the freshmen with 21 students, 26% of the class.

PADRE CAGERS GET EVEN BREAK AT KING CITY

Winning the lightweight fracas by a narrow 24-23 margin and losing to the King City varsity, 39 to 38, Carmel High opened the 1954-55 league season at the Mustang gym last Friday night. Inability to hit on the free throws plagued both Carmel teams as the Carmel lads hit more often from the floor but lacked consistency from the charity toss line.

The Carmel varsity was slow to get started against the big Mustangs and were behind 15-6 at the end of the first quarter as King City's great all-league forward, Tasos Melitis, pumped through 10 points to run away from the local preps. Gary Nielsen's two set shots and a Fratessa jumper put the 6 on the board for the Padres who were having a real difficult time getting the lid off the basket. George Wightman, top Carmel scoring threat, began to find the range in the second quarter, hitting for two field goals and a pair of free throws but Melitis and Frank Padilla, tiny KC guard, shoved through enough points to keep a 9-point margin at the half as the scoreboard read. 23 to 14.

With Mike Mosolf hitting for 8 points and Wightman getting 5, the Padres came within hailing distance of the Mustangs as the third quarter ended and drew even at 32 apiece early in the final period. It was touch and go for the final five minutes with a single point spread all the way. Paul Fratessa's two one-handers from the top of the key kept Carmel on even terms with the hosts until King City's fine guard, Jim Albanese hit a long one and a free throw to give the Mustangs a 39-38 bulge when the buzzer sounded to end the shooting.

Carmel's lightweight team parlayed one hot shooter, Bill McCormack, and a real tight defense into a 24-23 upset win over the favored King City Ponies. Ahead all the way after the first quarter, the Little Padres were moving the ball like the Boston Celtics but were shooting like the girl's fourth period gym class. Except for Bill McCormack, who pumped through 8 field goals to top all scorers, they might as well have left the Carmel basket off the backboard. The hard-trying Padre Babes couldn't hit the basket or backboard and were actually having a hard time hitting the floor. That they won by 1 point can be credited to their tight man-to-man defense which held the Ponies to 8 field goals. Fine rebounding by Merv Sutton, Bill McCormack and Ron Huffman established ball control for the Little Padres and forced the Ponies to shoot from the outside.

PADRE CAGERS AT MORGAN HILL TONIGHT

Carmel High basketball squads go into league action again tonight, meeting the brand new Live Oak (Morgan Hill) High School in their last outing until January 4, 1955. Tonight's games are important clashes for both the lightweights and varsity as a win for the Babes will see them firmly established on top the limited division, while a loss for the varsity would just about eliminate the big Padres from serious contention for the B league flag.

Last Friday night, the Live Oak teams split a double-header with the Hollister Haybalers, beating the 'Balers in the varsity division but losing a close one in the lightweight class. The hosts know their way around a basketball court and have been hard at practice since the first week in September since football has not been on the agenda at Live Oak. Previously in the Santa Clara Valley League, Live Oak has a student body of 500 and is a welcome addition to the B division of the CCAL.

Carmel's lightweight squad, sporting a 3-1 record for the season, has looked good in every outing so far and has a good chance to get over Live Oak if the shooters catch up with the defense and play patterns. With keen competition for all starting positions, the lightweight opening lineup will be picked from the following ten: forwards, Ron Huffman, Dick Albertson, Chuck Solomon and Bill McCormack; guards, Jim Konrad, Ted Childers, Mark Hildebrand and Bob Leidig; center, Mervyn Sutton, Roger Shields and Bob Durbrow.

The Padre varsity hopes to bounce back from a heartbreaking one-point loss to the talented King City Mustangs in their first league game and get back on the victory trail against the speedy Live Oak heavyweights. Practice sessions have emphasized free-throwing this week and there should be a big improvement in the charity-toss statistics tonight. This year's rules put a premium on free throws because a bonus toss is given whenever a thrower makes good on a foul-shot. Carmel's varsity will start with a combination of John Farrell and Mike Mosolf, forward, George Wightman, center, with Paul Fratessa and Dick Jennings at the guards.

Tonight's lightweight game starts at 7 o'clock with the varsity tilt slated for 8:15.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Guess It's Called a Safety "Drive"

Whitey Fisher, from the State Motor Vehicle Department, dropped by to discuss some of our local traffic problems.

"Up at Center Junction," Whitey says, "they've got a new sign that really slows down the traffic going through town."

"The sign says, 'At 25 miles an hour, you can drive through Center Junction in 2½ minutes!' It slows people down too—some just take it easy to check on that 2½ minutes, I guess. Hasn't even been a dented fender since that sign went up."

From where I sit, it wasn't what the sign said, but the way it was said. People are usually pretty understanding if they understand what you mean. It's the same way with differences of opinion. Perhaps your neighbor prefers a temperate glass of beer, and you would choose buttermilk. What I'd like to see is for all of us to "slow down," talk it out, and be respectful of our neighbor's rights.

Bensberg Finds Best Things In Austria Are Almost Free

Americans in the winter time.

"I spent one winter in Vienna, and even in long woolen underwear and Harris tweeds, I was cold all the time. The houses are heated only to 60 degrees. But it seems to agree with the Austrians. I never saw a child with a runny nose. They don't seem to catch cold."

He'll take his little German car with him again when he leaves in February. And when he arrives at Bremerhaven, they'll probably say the same thing they said to him when he landed there last March, "We're more used to seeing these cars going through here in the other direction."

Bensberg bought his car in Paris in 1951, and has been driving it all over Europe and hauling it back and forth across the Atlantic ever since. He advises fellow Carmelites who are taking their cars with them to Europe this spring by all means to disembark at Bremerhaven. His car was unloaded and through customs; he was provided with his international license and ready to drive away for his spring tour of Spain and Italy within an hour. "German efficiency. In Paris when I bought the car, it took me three days just to get my license, and it cost me twice as much."

Driving is wonderful in Austria, Germany, and Spain, he says. You have the roads to yourself. But in France and Italy the roads are crowded.

And everywhere you go you find the Germans. They are the great travelers of Europe now, two to one of any other nationality, except in France.

At Montserrat Monastery he heard the boys' choir singing their liturgical music. In Rome he did not seek audience with the Pope.

Rostockerhutte, for fifty cents a night's lodging, with sheets.

The Pontiff was ill, and Bensberg had audiences on previous visits to Italy.

Cruising around the southern countries was marking time for the Vienna Music Festival, held the last week of May through June. You have the same artists, conductors, the same music as in the Salzburg Festival in July. There is only one difference. In Vienna your seat costs you 46 shillings, about $1.80; in Salzburg you'll pay as high as $10.00. Then there is the great Vienna Boys' Choir to be heard every Sunday morning in the Royal Chapel of the Winter Palace, assisted by 25 or 30 members of the philharmonic orchestra and eight or ten tenors and basses from the opera.

The choir spends July and August on vacation in the Tyrol, in a little resort, Hinterbichl. The boys study, have games and sports like other kids, sing for field mass on Sunday and perform Mozart operettas in the neighboring villages. Music lovers plot and connive for bed and board in Hinterbichl, where accommodations are limited, but if you succeed in getting them you have a "heavenly" vacation, all wrapped up and delivered with music and scenery. Bensberg went, and stayed 18 days, and had to move eight times. He would be given a room for a night or two between the last occupant's departure and the arrival of the people who had reserved it. He got his room and three meals a day for $2.00.

He'll talk joyously and endlessly about music, including the Haydn Festival and Haydn's head, and forget to tell about the ease and economy with which one can sleep on the shoulder of a glacier, but once reminded, he's glad to expound his second love, the mountains. In the Austrian Tyrol you're high to start with, and you can go off for an innocent stroll in the fields of wild-flower hay, turn upward through the woods and in a few minutes, you're above timber line.

An American who is familiar with the Sierra, Tetons, and the Canadian Rockies will not faint at the sight of the Alps, but he's likely to experience a profound shock when he discovers the "huttes". They are everywhere, about four hours apart, providing clean, comfortable lodging for very reasonable rates, if you are a member of the Alpen Verein, the Austrian Hiking Club, an organization similar to our Sierra Club. Outsiders can stay at the "huttes" also, but they have to pay double, fifty cents a night! Members get rates, 28 cents, and all you have to do to be a member is ask to join and pay your dues. Bensberg stayed at a hutte 10,000 feet up, between two glaciers on the Gross Venedeger.

All over Austria accommodations and food are good and unbelievably cheap. A night's lodging, upstairs in the inns and taprooms, clean and comfortable, is to be found almost anywhere for 75 cents. Then there's that 17 cent liter of beer to be had at Augustiner Keller. The monks make it themselves, also a great variety of cheeses which are for sale along with good roast meat. You can sit at their tables, eat a lunch you have brought yourself or buy from their delicatessen, and drink their beer. It's a wonderful place and is known to few save the Austrians themselves who flock to it.

The Austrians seem to have a pretty good idea of how to live, Bensberg thinks, but it startles the newly-arrived American. "It's nostalgic, like stepping back into another century," he says. "They still go on Sunday afternoon walks together, mother, father, auntie and the children. In the evenings neighbors gather at one or another's house and play music. Everybody plays some instrument and there are neighborhood string quartets, bands and orchestras in every small town."

How did his native land look to him as he drove across it from New York to Carmel?

"I was shocked by the evidence of poverty," he said. "I had forgotten about the shacks, the litter, the dirt."

"They don't have poverty in Europe?"

"They have poverty but it's 'genteel'. They're too proud to let it show."

Editor, The Pine Cone:

I believe there is more than one consideration required for deciding the matter of the Red Cross building plans. Why shut it out of the residence zone? It isn't a home, that's true, but neither is it a commercial institution, so why should it be restricted to the business zone? There are several human activities that have a closer relation to family and home than to business, that benefit the individual but do not bring financial profit. It would seem that they can perfectly well be allowed place in the residence area.

Such institutions as churches, schools, purely recreational clubs like Carmel Foundation's Town House, Boy and Girl Scout houses, libraries, museums and art galleries when not run with the sales idea uppermost are all of them designed to supplement the home, to develop the personality. They are not in any sense commercial. Their purpose is close to that of the home. The money which supports them is contributed, in some cases from taxes, all of it out of citizens' pockets with the purpose of promoting social well-being and individual development, and should go as far as possible.

If allowed in the residence area these organizations can have buildings harmonizing with the homes and attractive landscaping even in small plots, which will not detract from the home atmosphere. If parking is a problem, it would be at least three times as great a problem in the crowded business district, and the same is true of traffic congestion. Moreover, with land values so high in that area, the Red Cross could afford only a minimum size lot to meet its needs and would have little money available for making the place attractive to the eye.

I think everyone will agree that the Red Cross is not a noisy institution and could in no way become an annoyance to neighboring homes. It would be more convenient of access for the volunteer workers, and in pleasant surroundings would be more conducive to efficient work. There appears to be no really valid reason for excluding the Red Cross from the residence site under consideration.

Violinist David Abel To Play With County Symphony January 18

David Abel, brilliant young San Francisco violinist, will be the first soloist for the 1954-55 season of the Monterey County Symphony under its new conductor, Gregory Millar.

Mr. Abel will perform the solo part in the Tschaikowski Violin Concerto in D Major for the next orchestra concert, January 18 at Sunset Auditorium.

A recent solo appearance on the Standard Hour earned Mr. Abel such acclaim that the 19-year-old violinist has been invited by Dmitri Mitropoulos, conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony, to appear with that orchestra next year.

Tickets for the remaining three concerts of the Monterey County Symphony season are available at local music stores.

Wayfarer Church To Be Setting For Medieval Nativity Play Tuesday

On Tuesday evening at 8:00 o'clock the York Cycle of Nativity Plays will be presented in the chapel of the Church of the Wayfarer by the Fort Ord Little Theater under the direction of David Sacks.

With a cast of fifteen, these six medieval plays of the 11th and 12th centuries will be presented with the choir singing Benjamin Britten's Ceremony of the Carols between the plays.

The program, made possible by Special Services at Fort Ord, is presented by the church to the community as a part of the observance of Christmas.

LIONS CHRISTMAS MEETING

The Peninsula Male Chorus entertained the Carmel Lions Club with a program of Christmas carols and songs at the club's meeting Tuesday night at Mission Ranch.

In the absence of the Chorus' regular conductor, John Farr, who is ill in the hospital, pinch-hit direction was given by Wallace Doolittle. Mr. Doolittle also led the Lions through some group caroling.

President Eben Whittlesey announced that the Lions' annual Christmas party for youngsters will again be held on Christmas morning at the Carmel Theatre, with a free show, free candy and a real Santa Claus.

Speaker at the next Lions meeting, December 21, will be Joseph McCloskey, who will discuss the new income tax act.

come a hazard, are they removed.

We see no reason for a reversal of that policy and deplore the attitude we have heard expressed at the council table during the past two years, "This tree is about to die anyway, so let's remove it and get a new one started."

We heartily applaud planting a new one in the vicinity, but not the removal of the so-called dying tree until it does definitely die.

his folksy ways and I-remember-whens, and got in some good licks with his allegations that the traffic along the truck route produces more noise than the Foreign Car Center. Proprietor Bob Baird's offer to play a recording of the relative values of the sounds emanating from the truck traffic and his garage was not taken up by the council.

The mayor appointed a committee of John Chitwood and Carl Patnude to see if a compromise could be reached between the Center and the neighbors.

City Clerk Peter Mawdsley reported that he had verified the signatures on the parking district petition; they represent 36.708 percent of the business district assessed property value, and that the petition is valid. The mayor appointed Clayton Neill, city engineer to bring in an estimate of the cost of the proposed district at the next council meeting.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
C. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

My column this week will be in the form of a book review. It is perhaps somewhat in the nature of "tooting my own horn", since the book is one that was prepared under the auspices of the National Parks Association. However, as I shall point out later, it fits into the subject of Conservation on the March remarkably well.

The title of the book is Exploring Our National Parks and Monuments. The author is Devereux Butcher, Field Representative of the Association and Editor of the National Parks Magazine. Mr. Butcher was in Carmel about two years ago on one of his trips of "exploration" of the national park system. The word "exploration", of course, is used in a personal sense. The original exploration of all of the national parks and monuments was done before they were set aside for this purpose.

The various units of the national park system have been selected in accordance with certain standards, unofficially but universally accepted by the various government departments and conservation organizations interested, and the Acts of Congress and Presidential Proclamations that have set aside the parks have conformed to these standards. They were first formulated by the Camp Fire Club of America in 1923 and were revised and brought up to date in 1945 by the National Parks Association. They are published in this book, together with a commentary by Newton B. Drury, who was at that time Director of the National Park Service.

There is not space in this column to go into detail but I should like to quote two sentences from Mr. Drury's commentary which are very important for a correct understanding of the real purpose of the national park system: "The enjoyment envisioned in the act creating the National Park Service is refreshment of mind and spirit as well as physical refreshment, and for that reason development for recreational use (i.e., outdoor sports) must be subordinated to the preservation and interpretation of the significant natural and historical features. The physical recreational use is an important by-product, but one which must not be permitted to affect adversely the primary use of the national parks and monuments".

Since conservation is usually defined as "the wise use of our natural resources", in this case true conservation consists of preservation of the original features of the national park areas for the primary purpose of "refreshment of mind and spirit". This is too often forgotten by commercial groups who think of the national parks as opportunities for "development" of one kind or another.

The book which I am reviewing is the fourth edition of the book with the same title first published in 1947. This edition has 16 full pages of color from Mr. Butcher's beautiful kodachromes. There are 288 pages in all and most of the book, which is published by Houghton Mifflin Co., is devoted to a description with photographs of the various national parks and monuments, arranged alphabetically. Information about routes and accommodations is included. There are also some pages devoted to nature protection in general.

All in all, it is the most authoritative book published on the entire national park system and one that every traveler to the parks should have in his permanent library. The Western Office of the Association aims to keep a supply of the book in stock.

CHRISTMAS THEME SUNDAY AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Christmas music will be given major emphasis at the Sunday morning service of the Carmel Presbyterian Church, to be held at 11:00 o'clock at the Carmel Woman's Club.

Jimmy Griffin will sing a spiritual of the nativity entitled Sleeping In A Manager. The Children's Choir, accompanied by Mrs. Annie G. Vaughan, will sing Luther's Cradle Hymn.

The sermon to be preached by Dr. Harry Clayton Rogers is entitled Come, Gather With Us Around God's Cradle, God's Child and Ours.

Metalwork By Wiese At Carmel Library

An exhibition of metal crafts by Ken Wiese, instructor at Sunset School and in the adult night school here, is on display this month in the Carmel Crafts Guild showcase in Carmel Library.

Mr. Wiese has been able to combine his vocation and avocation in his exploratory industrial arts classes at Sunset and in his adult jewelry and metalcraft instruction in the night school. Much of his interest in arts and crafts stems from Fresno State College, where one of his research projects was the compiling of a source book for a new course in design. He also had an opportunity to develop his ideas on design, colors and materials during a period of employment as a window dresser.

The present show, which includes work in brass, copper and oxidized metal, will continue through January 7.

Korean Kids Are Happy With Clothes Made By Carmel Church Women

By OLIVE SWEZY

The Fellowship room of the Wayfarer Church has been the scene of many activities during the past year, not the least of which has been the processing and shipping of two tons of clothing and other supplies for the destitute in Korea. Some of the clothing goes to children being treated for polio at the National Rehabilitation Center in Tonguae. This is under the combined auspices of the U.N. and Korea, with the American-Korean Foundation providing some of the staff. The Wayfarer Women have been sending boxes to Wendy Heaton, physiotherapist from the AKF, and the following is taken from her letters.

Thank you very much for sending us clothes in such good condition. I cannot tell you how grateful we are. I am having a wonderful time acting Santa Claus —it is a very good feeling.

Most of the clothes go to the National Rehabilitation Center in Tonguae. Some is given to the patients and some are being remade into Korean clothes by the people learning tailoring. 80% of the patients are veterans of the R.O.K. army and the rest are civilians. The patients and students live in quonset huts, and so far we have not been able to get any stoves. Fuel is very scarce. Both are supposed to be provided by the Korean Ministry of Social Affairs.

I was very pleased to find leather shoes in your cartons. I need them badly for my children with polio, so we can make braces for them. Most Koreans wear rubber shoes which are totally unsuited for braces. Unfortunately most of the shoes sent from the States are in very bad condition with heels that are too high. Korean women always wear flat-heeled shoes which are suited for the unpaved roads.

Tonight I had dinner with Miss Broadpoor who runs the Rural Training Center for the Y.W.C.A. in Tonguae. Very recently the house—a reconverted chicken coop —in which the students lived burned to the ground, and the girls lost most of their belongings. The stone building which they should inhabit, was, like most well-built buildings here, taken over by the R.O.K. army. Barbara Broadpoor was thrilled by the underwear and other clothes which I gave her from your cartons.

The sewing shop in the vocational training part of the Center is remaking many of the clothes you have sent. The various scraps of materials are very useful too. Three of the girls in this shop were with the partisan troops and did intelligence work between North and South Korean lines during the war. Two of them lost legs. Their homes were in North Korea and their attitude toward life has been brightened considerably now that they are learning a trade. They came to us on crutches, and after a course of exercises and re-education in walking, they can manage without them.

Besides teaching students various trades — tailoring, electrical and metal work, wood work, including making their own artificial limbs in many cases—the Center is a training center for doctors and student physiotherapy aides. Our training is extremely basic and I feel as if I were teaching school children — quite different from teaching University students at home.

It is difficult to express my gratitude to you, I just wish you could see the happy faces when I distribute your cartons of clothing. Most of the Koreans we treat are army veterans or refugees from North Korea. How many of them manage to live amazes us. And all these people have some sort of physical disability. It is really very thrilling for me to be able to show them that perhaps by means of simple exercises alone they can use a limb again. After the course of physiotherapy members of the vocational training school teach them a trade and finally place them in a job outside of the Center.

Of course the Center is having many growing pains. It is the first institution of its kind to be established in Korea. It takes months for equipment to reach us. Money is always a problem, and it is very difficult to get qualified teachers to leave the bright lights of Seoul and accept a small salary in Tonguae. It is very difficult to try to help one's neighbors if one's own family is starving. However, we are slowly getting ahead, and I think our enthusiasm, despite the language barrier, is becoming infectious.

I realize how easy it is for me to be enthusiastic while I am so well-fed and well-housed. None of our staff get enough to eat or get enough protein. 95% of the Korean population have intestinal parasites. Bare existence and survival are the goals of most Koreans.

The Needler

By Beth

Referring to the little squib about Pal, Carmel's beloved dog, in last week's Needler, a friend asked me if I had ever noticed the small plaque on Ocean Avenue, down a few stores from Dolores. Actually, I hadn't, so I went down to take a look. On the plaque is a small hook, for dog-parking purposes, and the inscription reads: "For Ruff's Leash. In memory of Pal, Carmel's Dog-About-Town, who would never be humiliated by a leash." Doing a bit of sleuthing, I found that the perpetrator and author is modest Bob Spencer of the House of Cards. Incidentally, the plaque is nailed to a post which says "one hour parking."

An irate friend became annoyed by a statement in a column appearing in a S.F. daily which stated that no wife of a president of the United States had ever been born in the West. "How about Mrs. Herbert Hoover (Lou Henry)?", she asked. "She lived in Monterey. And what about Mamie Eisenhower? Isn't her home in Denver?" We believed she was right until we consulted a world almanac and found that both of these First Ladies were born in Iowa. It is true that Lou Henry spent many of her early years in Monterey. My mother went to high school with her and her sister, Jean, in Pacific Grove. She later attended San Jose Normal and it was then that she was courted by Mr. Hoover, while he was an engineering student at Stanford University.

It has never occurred to my little black cocker spaniel to chase cars, but she made an exception one morning last week. There she was, sitting in the sun in the small patio dreaming dog dreams, when suddenly with a terrible amount of noise Carmel's street sweeper swept by. Mollie was so startled that she took out after the fearsome thing and the result was that she almost became one with the pine needles and rubbish in the monster's bread basket.

A local old-timer was recalling that one day when she was returning to the Peninsula by bus some twenty years ago, she noticed a sign at the Monterey ball park, which advertised an approaching game. The prices read as follows: Adults, 50c; Boys, 25c; Children, 10c; Women, 15c. Suppose a misogynist was responsible for the sign?

A local woman who is confused, even as you and I, about insurance terms called up her agent the other day to ask about the term "comprehensive." He said: "If you spill ink on the seat of your car, that's comprehensive. If you get caught in a sand storm on the desert and all the paint peels off your car, that's comprehensive. If you, like a client of mine did last year, go hunting, leave the door of your car open and the goats get in and eat up the upholstery, THAT TOO is comprehensive."

Employees of a local firm got together recently and all chipped in to buy the boss a birthday present. A sport shirt was decided upon, and a young lady employee was commissioned to make the purchase. She asked a gentleman to go with her, a man of impeccable taste. They picked out one thing wrong with this," she said. "This one is a woman's sport shirt." And so it was, with tucks and flares and such. The young lady employee's face is red, and she doesn't like to be reminded of the incident.

A frantic phone call from the Carmel Police Department told the job printer that they were absolutely out of traffic citation books. The printer dropped all of his urgent holiday work to turn out the necessary forms and when he had finished he walked tiredly out to his car. There, on his windshield was a ticket for over-parking. Out of citations? Well, almost!

"Most Vindicated" Ex-Senator Benton Drops In For Lunch

Ex-Senator William Benton of Connecticut paid a brief visit to Mr. and Mrs. Zenas Potter last week, arriving by plane at 11:00 o'clock Thursday morning. The Potters took him to Del Monte Lodge for lunch and he was off again at 2:00 o'clock.

Benton introduced the original resolution for an investigation of Senator Joseph McCarthy. McCarthy hit back by campaigning against him when Benton ran for re-election, charging Communist sympathy. Benton was defeated by a small margin, but today, since the censure of McCarthy, is back in the news as "the most vindicated man in America."

they thought would be pleasing and suitable and later made the presentation. Some few days later the man asked his wife to change the shirt and select a different pattern, inasmuch as this one was very similar to one he already had. The wife did this, but when the girl in the store took a look she gasped. "There's some-

The Classical Folk Dance

By HARRIETT KEEN ROBERTS

When, in my twenties, Pavlova and Mordkin first danced in London, I remember coming from a matinee and immediately buying a ticket for the evening's performance, so enchanted was I by my firist glimpse of the Russian ballet. It is not a thing which I expected to do again. But Madelynne Greene's Festival Workshop, in their concert of International Dances, so delighted me that, after the matinee, back I went to the Sunset Auditorium on the evening of December 4. (If Miss Greene had been here for a "run" I might have behaved as did the elderly heroine of Elizabeth-and-her-German-Garden's Love; she went night after night to The Immortal Hour and despised, from the height of her twenty-first attendance, those who had seen the Lordly Ones from the Hollow Hills a mere seventeen times.) The enthusiasm of the audience was so like my own that I hope it will encourage Miss Greene to visit Carmel again, when its inhabitants are free from the preoccupations of Christmastide.

There is a time in all the arts, as there is in life, when the knowledge and skill of maturity has been gained and the enthusiasm and high spirits of youth are not yet lost. Miss Greene and her company seemed to me at that point of perfection. I have, in a long lifetime, seen so much ballet, in London, Paris, New York, San Francisco, that I had come to the sad conclusion that I had seen enough. But Miss Greene and her company gave me back the delighted greediness of my youth. To the perfection of skill of the ballet they added the infectious pleasure of the folk dance. And twenty dancers can give a feeling of intimacy that a larger number cannot. So successfully did the Festival Workshop convey their skill, gaiety and high spirits to their audience that I could almost believe I was dancing with them, as light-footed and light-hearted as they. And, in the Andro Curro, a dance of Mallorca, we not only danced, we seemed to fly.

The costumes from many lands were so bright with beautiful color, so rich with intricate embroidery on such strange materials that they were a pleasure to both eye and mind. They were so obviously authentic that they and the dances became a little lesson in anthropology; and never was a lesson easier or more agreeable to learn. These are not the folk dances in which we can all cavort with pleasure; they are the classic folk dances which make us feel that we are visiting far lands and understanding strange peoples a little better. There is, to me, something a little inhuman in the difficult perfection of a large ballet and it is nearly always too long. Miss Greene made each dance into something more and something much more interesting than a ballet; each dance was also a little drama, which touched our hearts with the grief of the parting of lovers, or moved us to mirth at masculine vanity, and all were so brief that they seemed over too soon. The last dance made us happy sharers in the joy, the ancient customs and symbols of a Polish Wedding.

The Lezginka and Eurur-Haust, dances from Caucasia, were the strangest and most beautiful I have ever seen. I had not realized that medieval costumes were still worn anywhere in the world. They seemed to me, with their veils, their long sleeves lined with a contrasting color, their long skirts opening on a differently colored underskirt, the most beautiful clothing that women have ever worn. To see the men, in their long black coats, passing knives under their knees, as their high black boots shot back and forth in the typical and difficult Russian manner, was alarming enough, but they went on to carrying their knives, whose handles had burst into flame, in their teeth!

For some dances, those in a Bavarian beergarden, there was an accomplished accordion player, a drum throbbed in the Harvest-Dance

DECEMBER IN CARMEL

Wearing its winter like a rose
That needs no prop nor pruning
This little town in tinsel goes
With singing birds for tuning.

Down to the sea December-blue
The street runs straight and gaily,
Planted with trees and threaded through
With hordes of shoppers daily.

Soon it will wear at foot and head
Two trees both green and slender,
Crowned by a star and brightly spread
With strings of rainbow splendor.

This little town is doubly blest
Once for its natural beauty,
Once for the ever-watchful zest
That keeps a haven untransgressed
And makes this task a duty.

—P.C.

TIME VERTICAL

Vibrant with birds the garden after storm
Twitters and flutters with a charm of wings.
Unto some constant law all things conform
And where the wild gale shrieked a warbler sings.

Turn time around from line to vertical
And view the upright moment with new eyes—
Within the storm the heart is musical
And in the core of peace the tumult dies.

O ye whom men have tortured and reviled:
Ye sages, prophets, martyrs with torn hands,
Was this the radiant truth you sought to tell?
How clear this moment shines! How like a child
Arrayed in simple innocence it stands
Yet with all wisdom immanent as well.

—ANON

THE POPPY PLANT

One only, where I scattered generous seed
With all the prodigality of waste,
But what a tower attained!

It rose with confidence and Grecian form
They grey-green leaves unfolding one by one,
The column round and strong.

Curved buds appeared, close-lidded, firm and full
Down-bending in an attitude of prayer
Then opening like two hands
To free the precious ruby-satined bloom
From the restraining shell.

The crinkled petals, smoothing out, revealed
The dark mysterious centre where the seed
Of curious form appeared.

Full-opened soon, the regal perfect flower
Rode on the rocking motion of the wind
Complete and whole,
The miracle achieved!

Artists Guild Show

The Artists Guild of America presents this month an exhibition of fine oil paintings by twenty-three distinguished artists. Among these will be found works by Armin Hansen, Paul Lauritz, Arthur Hill Gilbert, Marshall Merritt, Nell Walker Warner, Laurence Hosner, Dorothy Furuya, and many others whose names are familiar in the world of art.

Among the Armin Hansens is a wonderful little water color called On the Windward Shore. This is a very free and spontaneous piece of work, capturing the cold bleakness of the wind and push of the struggling figures against the storm. The wrecked ship beaten by the elements is a tragic token of man's ineffectual struggle against the superior strength of nature.

The paintings by Dorothy Furuya are strong and swift, even though the subjects are often calm and tranquil. She works with a firm, capable hand, free with paint and not afraid to use it generously for dramatic highlights. Paul Lauritz presents several examples of his famous work, masterly and rugged with rock textures and grey silver lights of sea and sky. Arthur Hill Gilbert's work is well known here and widely admired, and the present exhibit gives an opportunity for the collector. Marshall Merritt presents several striking pictures, among them a mountain pass which is almost real enough to walk through. His still lifes are remarkable for detailed execution.

Alice Stuckenbrocker, with her characteristic ice blues and greys, paints a city on the Danube, a street and river scene, cold and snowy, delicate and almost ethereal in atmosphere. Mason Wright has several of his excellent pictures in this exhibit, among them a scene from the Highlands showing the deep, fathom blue water of the cove against the tile red roofs. Nell Walker Warner has several of her fine flower studies, so widely used for interior decoration and design. She certainly knows how to paint flowers. They look so fresh that they seem just now to have opened into bloom.

A large landscape by Seymour Thomas is called Clearing Skies, and the light, sun-illumined edges of the clouds fairly shine from the canvas above white sand, jewelled with trailing verbena and dune flowers.

Patricia Cunningham's two pictures, The Village Blacksmith and the Arch of Triumph, follow her well-known technique with all its dash and brilliancy. She is a painter who combines successfully a true sense of solidity and mass, with a spontaneous daring of outline. Darwin Musselman's two pictures on the balcony, are exceptional for a restraint of color which is almost the patina of age. Road to Pacheco shows the satin-gold hills beyond the pass which have charmed all observant travellers of that road.

Harold Landaker's two clown pictures are very delightful in their humor and colorful liveliness. General Dorn presents three of his latest works, as remarkable as always for their careful detail and their understanding of the Chinese landscape. Burton Boundey has two pictures in the foyer which hold the visitor's attention for further study and admiration. All together it is a most satisfying and rewarding exhibit in the attractive little gallery.—D. H.

LITTLE PAINTING SHOW

Carmel Art Association will open the New Year with another of its "small painting" shows which have proved popular in the past. The special exhibition, which will be held in addition to the regular watercolor and oil show, will comprise works in all media, not exceeding 20 by 20 inches in outside dimensions.

Early next year the gallery will present a one-man show of new works by Patricia Cunningham, painted during her just-completed sojourn in Italy and Western Europe.

"Of The People, By The People" Music At Club Xmas Party

By E. C. Hopkins

The Student Union Hall of the Monterey Junior College rang with carols old and new Sunday evening when John Farr's choruses of both men and women met with the Musical Art Club for the annual Christmas party. It was in a way a unique demonstration of Music "of the people, by the people and for the people", both groups being made up of homemakers and non-professional singers. Miss Peggy Aikenhead presided at the piano. The women's chorus is often known as the "Mother's Chorus" and has been sponsored by the P.T.A. for some time. The Men's Chorus has had a long and checkered career, most of its members having been organized a half a dozen times in a succession of Glee Clubs now being blended into a body of well-trained and nicely balanced harmonizers by the present director. The interpretations were invariably neat and many subtle effects added to the effectiveness of the carol settings. These were often uncommonly arranged by recent composers, though Bach and other standard authors were represented as well. Between sections of the program the audience sang a number of the familiar carols, creating an atmosphere of Christmas fellowship which culminated in a social hour. Refreshments were served.

Before the program the Musical Art Club held an election of officers for 1955. Mrs. Irene Graham is the new president, the other officers being Mrs. Edna Nuetzel, first vice-president; Dr. Harvey Marshall, second vice-president; Mrs. Marion Parker, corresponding secretary; Prof. Charles Oler, recording secretary; and Mrs. Helen Abinante, treasurer. The directorate includes Rev. and Mrs. Chas. A. Dowdell, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Forbes, Mrs. Dorothy Goudge, Miss Dorothy Herr, Mr. Ed Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hopkins, Mrs. Jean M. Klenke, Miss Angie Machado, Mr. Wade Parks, Mr. and Mrs. Roudi Partridge, Col. and Mrs. Philip Schneeberger, Mrs. Haskell Stewart, and Miss Adelaide Taylor.

Florence McKay

Miss Florence Elizabeth McKay died at her beach cottage in Del Monte Dunes, on Thursday, December 9, after a prolonged illness. Her home was in Berkeley but for many years she has spent her summers in Carmel with her sister, Grayce Ethelyn McKay, whose home is at the southwest corner of Casanova and Twelfth Street.

Florence McKay had an active business career in New York City. Before her retirement for reasons of health, she was associated with Helen Keller, as Director General of the American Foundation for the Blind. During World War I she held an executive position with the Allied Silk Trading Corporation in New York City and received a decoration for her valuable war work. Previous to that time she had had her own offices at 54 Wall Street, as a court reporter.

Funeral services were held Monday in Oakland.

from Borneo, and the company made odd and beguiling music with a gourd and with bunches of bamboo in the Hawaiian dances. Otherwise Miss Greene wisely used records to give us the wailing of the bag-pipes for the Scots dances, and the variety of I know not what strange instruments supplied authentic music for dances from Russia or the Pacific Islands.

When I say that Madelynne Greene, Lorrarine Ungaretti and Bill Roberts are three as skilled and as enthralling dancers as I have even seen I do not mean to imply that the whole company are not marvellously skilled and beautiful to watch. They are. They are lovely, too, to remember. Like Wordsworth's daffodils, "They flash upon that inward eye."

I hope they will soon flash again upon out outward eyes.

"Unorthodox" Carmel Shops Are Subject Of Monitor Article

The Unorthodox Shops of Carmel is the heading on a feature article in the November 29 issue of the Christian Science Monitor. Jean Cowles, the writer, is impressed with the hideaway nature of some of our little shops. "The expert's excellent theory that a shop should be on a well-travelled street so it will attract customers does not hold true in Carmel. Here many of the shops are set back in courtyards, down narrow paths, behind high wooden fences, in back yards behind private homes, and at the top of a long flight of stairs which one reaches at the far end of an alleyway. And visitors gladly climb the stairs, and wend their way down alleyways because it is all a part of the charm of Carmel."

She comments on the shop names, original and anything but descriptive of the goods they purvey. The leisurely life of Carmel is typified, she thinks, by the signs in restaurants, "Breakfast served all day." This spirit of leisure is further exemplified by the attitude of the shop keepers who allow the visitor to browse at will.

The writer closes by commenting on the friendliness of the business people, expressed in the case of Edith Larson by the card she displays in her restaurant, which quotes Don Blanding's little Welcome Guest poem.

CAROLE SPAULDING HOME

Dr. and Mrs. C. Arthur Spaulding are busily completing the holiday decorations around their home at Fourth and Carmelo in preparation for the double occasions of their daughter's return home from the east today and a large Christmas party tomorrow.

Carole Spaulding will arrive home this afternoon on a holiday vacation from the Ethel Walker School in Connecticut, which she has attended since September. She will be here with her parents through the New Year, and tomorrow evening will assist Mrs. Spaulding in greeting the 100 or more guests invited by for the traditional Christmas "at home" party.

It's Ensign McNeill Now

The Navy, moving in a slow but deliberate manner, finally got around to bestowing its blessing on Legare McNeill. As of last month, it's Ensign McNeill.

Legare, whose graduation from U.C. and marriage to the former Leslie Clark of San Francisco both took place in June, spent the summer and early fall here with his wife and family waiting for his orders. They finally came through in October, and Legare and Leslie are making their new home in San Diego, where he is attached to the APA vessel USS Menard.

Legare and his wife won't be able to spend Christmas here with his parents, Lt. Col. and Mrs. James P. McNeill, but the other branch of the family, James P. McNeill, Jr., and his wife, Vicki, will be coming down from Berkeley for the holiday. "Mac", who like his brother graduated from Carmel High and U.C., recently entered the U.C. Medical School.

Edith Larson Travels Fast

Mrs. Edith Larson, who says jauntily that life really begins at 50, or maybe even 60, breezed back home Monday, seeming not a bit fazed at having covered over 8000 miles in just 12 days.

Mrs. Larson's high-speed air trip carried her from San Francisco to Chicago, where she visited with her sister and other relatives and friends. The next phase of the trip was by train to Manitiwoc, Wisconsin, where she stayed with her brother, who operates an aluminium foundry. Among the many interesting sights Mrs. Larson took in during her stay at the Great Lakes port was the launching of a huge new aircraft carrier.

Returning to Chicago, where the weather was snowy and sleety, Mrs. Larson took to the air again for the northwest, stopping off in Denver and getting nipped in the 10-degree weather. Then on to Seattle, where she visited another brother, and finally south to Carmel again.

While Mrs. Larson was gadding about, her daughter, Mrs. Elaine Scarlett, took charge of her restaurant here. Another daughter, Mrs. Carol Reams, also lives here, and she and her husband, the Scarletts, and all their children will be with Mrs. Larson for Christmas.

Domingo Baby Christening Party

The first child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Domingo will be christened at a ceremony to be held at 3:00 o'clock Sunday afternoon in Carmel Mission.

The baby's sponsors are Messrs. Rizel Delgado, Fabian Era, Joe Saraha, George Rosales, Pat Inosanto, Angelo Blanquera and Miss Amparo Ureta, Mrs. Anacoreto Inoturan, Mrs. Nick Imperial and Mrs. Rico Roldan.

A dinner dance in honor of the christening will be held at the Carmel American Legion Hall Sunday night from 7:00 to 1:00 o'clock. Among the guests will be friends and relatives of the Domingos from San Francisco and Santa Maria.

Leigh and Basil Coming Home

Mr. and Mrs. Basil Allaire (Leigh McKenney) will be flying home from St. Louis next week to spend Christmas here with their families. Basil, the son of Mrs. Charles Allaire, is on vacation from St. Louis University where he is a medical student.

En route home, the Allaires plan to stop off in Alameda to spend Tuesday night with Leigh's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. Carol McKenney, Jr. They will arrive here Wednesday, and divide their time between Leigh's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. Carol McKenney in Pebble Beach and the Allaire family, branches of which are all over Carmel, Monterey and the Valley.

Dixons Off on Adventure Cruise

Mr. and Mrs. B. Franklin Dixon aren't quite certain how Christmas is celebrated in Fiji, but they will be finding out shortly.

The Dixons left Wednesday on an adventure tour of the Pacific which will keep them abroad almost a year. Though both are seasoned travelers, neither have explored the Pacific islands, India, Africa or South America. The first leg of their flight will take them to Honolulu, and from there on, the trip will be all new to them.

Christmas, as noted above, will be spent on the British island of Fiji, where, Mr. Dixon says, he understands that they will have to dress for dinner, a custom of which he strongly disapproves. The Dixons will spend New Years in Tahiti, then continue their flight southwest to New Zealand, Tasmania and Australia. Then they'll progress in a leisurely manher through the Solomon Islands, New Guinea and the Netherlands Indies—Borneo, Java, Sumatra—and finally on into India.

After exploring India, the Dixons will head for Manila, Hong Kong and Japan, where they will board a Royal Dutch ship for a cruise touching on East and South Africa, then across the south Atlantic to South America. They don't expect to be home before September or October of 1955.

Pat's Back From Italy

Pat Cunningham arrived home by plane last Sunday laden with the products of a fruitful three months' painting trip in Europe and literally glowing over Italy, where she spent most of her time.

Particular object of Pat's enthusiasm is Rome, which she visited for the first time and which, she says, "I fell madly in love with."

"Every superlative has already been exhausted on Rome," says Pat in adding her own. "There's simply no past or present there—all ages are together, and the entire history of art before you. It simply can't be conveyed in books or words. I felt I knew nothing before I saw Italy."

But while Rome was the focus of her attentions, Pat also managed to visit nearly every other major city and art center in Italy, finding them all fascinating. Early in her tour, she stopped off in Ireland for a visit with relatives and in England to see some friends, then hopped over to Paris, one of her old loves, for some sketching.

The new paintings and sketches made by Pat during her trip will be featured in a one-man show at the Carmel Art Gallery early next year, or as soon as Pat can get them properly framed and mounted. In addition to being co-director of the Carmel Art Institute with her husband, John, Pat is also president of the Carmel Art Association.

Don Sands is Kiwanis President

Carmel Kiwanis and their ladies enjoyed cocktail hour at the home of President Donald Staniford and Mrs. Staniford, Thursday of last week, and then went on to La Playa Hotel for installation dinner. District Lieutenant Governor Jim Sloan of Salinas installed Don Sands, president; Al O'Connell, vice-president; George Baxter, secretary, and John Ruster, treasurer. New directors are Hal Armor, Bob Connell, Tom Elston, Arne Halle, Pete Johnston, Carl Patnude and Herb Poffenberger.

Tom Delay, Steve Magyar and Fong Jing of Monterey and Herb Brownell of Carmel Valley were visiting v.i.p. Kiwanis.

East for the Holidays

Mrs. Fenton Grigsby left Tuesday on a cross country train trip which will land her next week at Providence, Rhode Island, where she will spend the Christmas holidays with her daughter, Catherine, and son-in-law. Cmdr. Mackinnon Lansdowne. Mrs. Grigsby expects to return home shortly after the first of the year.

Art Assoc. Board Meets

The board of directors of the Carmel Art Association met last Friday evening at the gallery, with Zenas Potter presiding in the absence of board chairman Pat Cunningham.

It was reported that receipts of the recent Artists' Ball are expected to be in the vicinity of $400. "But like absentee ballots, they're not all in yet," noted board member Sam Colburn.

Fisher New Realty President

Allen Knight turned over the gavel of the Monterey Peninsula Realty Board to Wright S. Fisher at the meeting of the board December 8 at Casa Munras. Fisher will also serve as a state director, along with new vice-president Jay Lewis, and will join John Sayers and Irma Owens in representing the board on the Defense Housing Committee.

Other officers elected at Monday's meeting were Mary Leslie, secretary, and John Sayers, treasurer. Elected to directorships were George Dollar, Allen Knight, Irma Owens, Leslie Rice and Harold Saunders.

George Dovolis and P. M. Dinkel were appointed to make arrangements for an installation banquet to be held in January.

Anton Janda in Austria

It was news flavored with nostalgia when Mr. and Mrs. Antony Janda learned that their son, Second Lieutenant Anton R. Janda, had been assigned to duty in Salzburg, Austria.

Anton's father, who operates the beauty salon at the Pine Inn, is a native Austrian himself, though his birthplace was in the northern part of the country which is now a part of Czechoslovakia, and hence closed to visitors. A few members of Mr. Janda's family still make their home there.

Lt. Janda was assigned to duty with the U.S. Forces in Austria just five weeks ago, and is apparently enjoying Salzburg thoroughly. He serves with a four-power security force in Austria which, since the end of World War II, has also operated the port of embarkation for all personnel and supplies coming to USFA in Leghorn, Italy.

Prior to entering the Army last June, Lt. Janda was employed as an electrical engineer by the General Electric Co. in Schenectady, New York. He attended Sunset and Mission schools here in Carmel, and graduated in 1953 from the University of Santa Clara. He was last stationed at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

Miss Drake to be Mrs. Woodward

Marian Viola Drake, daughter of the James Drakes of Seaside, and Robert James Woodward, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Herman Woodward of Monterey, have announced December 27 as the date for their wedding at the Monterey Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Russell Bisnett will read the evening service, which will take place at 8:00 o'clock. The reception will follow at the church.

Both "Woody" and Marian graduated from Monterey High and Monterey Peninsula College. He entered the Air Force following his graduation from MPC last April, while Marian went to work for the college as a secretary.

Marian's matron-of-honor will be her sister, Mrs. Charles William Jones (Barbara Drake) of Seaside. Two other sisters, Janet and Eleanor Drake, will also have a part in the wedding, Eleanor as a bridesmaid and Janet as vocal soloist. The bride's cousin, Nadine Drake, will be the second bridesmaid, while her small niece and nephew, Kitty Ellen and Charles Jones, will be flower girl and ringbearer respectively.

John Mortenson, a life-long friend and Monterey schoolmate of the groom, will be Robert's best man. Two other Montereyans, Bob Marron and Bob Sweat, will usher.

Following the wedding, the new Mr. and Mrs. Woodward will drive east to establish their home in Topeka, Kansas, and the benedict will return to his duties at nearby Forbes Air Force Base where he is a member of the base newspaper and public relations staff.

Dr. Barnes to Honolulu

The neatest reciprocal business and vacation arrangement for the holiday concerns Dr. Margaret Barnes, who will leave from San Francisco Sunday to fly to the Hawaiian Islands for Christmas.

While Dr. Barnes is en route to the Islands, her friend and osteopathy colleague, Dr. Elizabeth Gladding of Honolulu, will be flying to the coast. Arriving at the airport in Honolulu, Dr. Barnes will pick up Dr. Gladding's car and then temporarily take charge of the latter's osteopathic practice and her home in Waikiki for three weeks. Dr. Gladding, in turn, will find Dr. Barnes' car waiting for her at the San Francisco Airport, and will drive from there to Yosemite to spend the Christmas holiday at the Ahwanee Hotel.

The arrangement will not only offer Dr. Barnes a pleasant vacation, with plenty of time for swimming and sunning, but a chance to keep her hand in practice as an osteopathic physician as well. Though she does not maintain a practice here in Carmel, Dr. Barnes is kept busy in her capacity as national secretary of the Academy of Applied Osteopathy. She and Dr. Gladding traded locations under similar circumstances during the summer of 1953, when Dr. Barnes spent a full 10 weeks handling her friend's practice in the Islands.

Though she has no definite plans for Christmas itself, Dr. Barnes has many friends in and around Honolulu whom she expects to visit during the holiday. And celebrating Christmas in the sunny, palm-fringed atmosphere of the Islands seems not much stranger, says Dr. Barnes, than spending Christmas in California does to a native Easterner like herself.

Channukah Dinner Dance

Celebrating the Festival of Channukah, The Feast of Lights, the newly formed Jewish Men's Club of the Monterey Peninsula is sponsoring a dinner dance Sunday evening, 7:30 o'clock at El Estero Hall in Monterey. Reservations may be made by phoning 3-5576 or 5-4975.

Plaxtons' Daughter Visits

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Plaxton enjoyed a brief pre-Christmas visit from their daughter, Betty, last weekend. Betty, who is Mrs. Donald Brown, came up from Riverside to attend the wedding in San Jose of her brother-in-law, Lymon Brown, and her former maid-of-honor, Joan Spencer.

The Plaxtons and Browns will all be together for Christmas day. The Plaxtons are planning a Christmas eve celebration here with their families, then will leave immediately afterwards to drive south. They expect to arrive in Riveside in time for Christmas morning breakfast with Betty and Don and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Brown.

Home for the Holidays

Karen and Tom Silvear and her brother, Kurt von Meier, will be driving up from the south this weekend to join Mrs. Julian von Meier for the Christmas holiday.

Kurt, who was studying at U.C. until his recent association with the U.S. Navy, shipped last week from San Francisco to San Diego, not far from Santa Ana, where the Silvears make their home. Kurt's ship is the USS Eldorado, flagship of the communications fleet. Also with the Carmel-bound party will be the Silvears' young son, Brian.

The other "K" of klan von Meier, Kathy, won't be able to come down for the holiday as her husband, Carol McKenney, Jr., will be tied up with his job as crew chief with Transocean Airlines. They'll have their own family Christmas at their home in Alameda with their three children, Gael, Erin and Carol IV. Mrs. von Meier plans to drive up for a visit with them shortly after the holiday.

The Bakers' Daughter

Just one week old today is Kim Baker, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Baker of Hitchcock Canyon. The young lady made her debut at Peninsula Hospital, where she weighed in at six pounds, 11½ ounces, and she's the Bakers' first. Also, according to Mrs. Baker, she is "an exact replica of her father in appearance."

Kim's dad, who teaches at Fort Ord, is a member of the Carmel Art Association and a frequent exhibitor at the Carmel gallery. The baby's maternal grandmother, Mrs. May Rugh of Berkeley, is now visiting the Bakers at their home in the Valley and helping to get the newcomer oriented to her new surroundings. The paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Ervin of Fresno, will be down to see Kim before they leave for Spain, where Mr. Ervin will be working on an engineering project.

Around the Horn and Back

Part time Carmelite Harry L. ("Scotty") Marshall sailed through the Golden Gate this week aboard the Norwegian motorship Hardanger, outward bound on a four months' cruise around South America.

Scotty's ship will take the long, leisurely way down to the southern tip of the continent, stopping off at various ports along the coast and then rounding the Horn and up the east coast, with layovers at Buenas Aires and Rio de Janeiro. The cruise will return to San Francisco via the Panama Canal, arriving home sometime in March.

The around-the-Horn cruise is a favorite with several well-traveled Carmelites. Carol Brown, who recommended the South America voyage to Scotty, says that she picked up the same cruise two years ago in Rio, only to find among the passengers two other Carmelites, Mrs. Claire Naftzger and Mrs. Charlotte Brown, who had been aboard since the ship left San Francisco.

Wayfarer Tea

At a short business meeting preceding the Christmas tea on Tuesday afternoon the Women's Auxiliary of the Church of the Wayfarer voted to send ten dollars to the American Friends Service Committee for use in the distribution of U.S. surplus foods to needy families overseas. This sum will provide two tons of such foods for this purpose. The women also voted to send the rest of the offerings at the two December teas to several families in Hungary and the Russian-held part of Austria, who are suffering great hardship under their Communist rulers. These families are friends of Dr. Bela C. Maday of the Army Language School, who with his family is active in the Church of the Wayfarer.

The Auxiliary members greatly enjoyed the program of Christmas songs presented by the Carmel High School a capella choir in the sanctuary; the choir was directed by Mrs. Ralph Marsh in the absence of the teacher, John Farr, who was ill. At the devotions by Mrs. E. Leigh Mudge, preceding the music, two of the young men in their choir robes lighted the candles in the candelabra and on the altar as Mrs. Mudge read passages from the Bible showing Christ and his teachings as the light of the world.

Himmahs Have Their Present

"We've got the Christmas present we wanted," says Mrs. Gael C. Himmah, speaking of the six pound, one ounce son she and Lt. Himmah welcomed December 8 at Peninsula Hospital.

The Himmahs, who make their home at Robles del Rio, have named their first child Steven Clark. Mrs. Himmah feels that small Steven is a ringer for his dad, who is finance officer at Fort Ord.

Sharing in the excitement over the new baby are the paternal grandparents, the Arthur Himmahs, who also make their home in the valley. Steven's maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Santini of Weed, who are scheduled to come down for a visit in January. Mrs. Santini, however, couldn't wait that long. Last Sunday, despite a brisk snowstorm, she chartered a little Piper Cub and made a special flight to the Peninsula, rushed up to the hospital to see her daughter and new grandson, then happily flew back to Weed to spread the news firsthand.

COMMUNITY SING

The Peninsula Male Chorus and the Women's Chorus, under the direction of John Farr, invite everyone to join them for the Christmas Community Sing Sunday evening at 4:00 o'clock in the Carmel Woman's Club.

Each of the choral groups has prepared a special program of songs and carols, which will be followed by the audience participating in the traditional Christmas favorites. Refreshments will follow the singing.

Mrs. Doud Beats the Blizzard

Mrs. James Doud flew in Sunday from Texas, where she has been visiting for the past three weeks with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fitch, and their 10-year-old son, Frank.

The Fitches make their home in Irving, a short distance away from Dallas, and for the duration of Mrs. Doud's visit, the weather there was warm, clear and beautiful. The day after she left, a blizzard moved in, and the Fitches now write that there's snow, sleet and icy wind.

Next week, the Toland Douds (Bev Dowgiallo) and their two daughters are expected down from Palo Alto to spend the holidays with their parents. Also on hand for the Christmas family doings will be the Shreve Archers (Peggy Doud). The remainder of the family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Warren (Louise Doud), will hold forth during Christmas at their home in New Jersey with their three young daughters.

Hartnell Choir In Christmas Program At All Saints' Sunday

The Hartnell College Choir of Salinas will present a Christmas program at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel Sunday evening at 8:00 o'clock. This will be a service of six lessons and carols based on the Service of Lessons and Carols given by King's College Chapel, Cambridge, since 1918.

The 55 voice choir will begin the service with a candlelight processional, Hodi, Christus es, a 13th century hymn, and will sing appropriate selections after each lesson of scripture is read. William Stone, organist, will assist the choir, directed by Vahe Aslanian of Hartnell music department, and will play organ works selected from the Chorales of J. S. Bach, and Marcel Dupre's Variations on a Noel. Handel's Alleluia Chorus from The Messiah, and The Gloria, Mass in D Major by Vivaldi will be the major works performed.

The public is invited to attend without charge. A free-will offering will be taken.

The Time Has Come.

By Kippy Stuart

Each year, at this time, I begin to plead with gardeners to consider the gift of growing plants. What could be more, satisfactory than to pass a friend's house, year after year, and see your gift waxing strong and sturdy? One custom, I usually follow, is to offer a young tree for the new-born baby, and I do have the satisfaction of watching my gift-trees mature.

There are so many suitable flowering shrubs and stately trees that will answer the gift question. I know of no surprise as fine as receiving a young holly tree for Christmas, and remember, the idea of presenting a live Christmas tree in a tub, is as old as Santa Claus himself.

There are myriad varieties of fir trees now at the nurseries that will make excellent Christmas trees. The blue spruce is a honey of a tree; the incense cedar is another. Deodora has a feathery foliage lovely to look at and our own mountain cedar grows in true pyramidal form.

Those who receive flowering plants for Christmas, and who take care of these plants will have them with the family for a long time. The trick with blooming azalea is not to flood the plant with water. Keep azalea moderately damp and never allow water to stand in the saucer. If the plant starts yellowing, try a tiny bit of alum sprinkled on the earth, then well watered. Cyclamen is another desirable gift plant. The new varieties of cyclamen cover a large range of colors. I prefer the pure white cyclamen. Last year, about March, I bought several young cyclamen in a flat. I transplanted the young plants into pots and have cared for them through the year. I am rewarded now with mature plants that are blooming their heads off. Almost a year, seems a long time to wait for a plant to mature, but when you consider the difference in price, it seems worth while. I paid a few cents apiece for the plants in March and now I have a galaxy of color in my living room, that today would have cost me a pretty penny.

The polyanthus roses have become popular for winter color. These roses come in varying colors also, and can be selected while in bloom. Tiny rose buds shower the plant like a trimmed Christmas tree and from my experience, the polyanthus like a warm, heated living room.

One of my favorite New Year gifts is the Yule Log. I just go to my wood pile, select the largest log I can handle, then go to work. I wind red ribbon around the log, then cover the log with berries . . . that is, if the little feathered friends haven't stripped my cotoneaster and pyracantha. Our local toyon give radiant berries and always I can find some red berries the birds have overlooked.

Our local nurseries are loaded with gift ideas for discriminating donors. Take a look-see and your gift problem will be solved.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

"Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read at Christian Science services Sunday.

Man's God-given dominion over materialism, including the so-called laws of chance and misfortune, is brought out in the readings from the Bible, among which is the account of Paul's restoration of Eutychus, the young man who "fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead" (Acts 20).

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (424:5): "Accidents are unknown to God, or immortal Mind, and we must leave the mortal basis of belief and unite with the one Mind, in order to change the notion of chance to the proper sense of God's unerring direction and thus bring out harmony."

Dr. McCormick Joins Staff At Agnew

Dr. Edward W. McCormick will leave private practice to join the medical staff of the State Mental Hospital at Agnew, "work which I hope will give me regular hours and absence of pressure", he announced in a letter mailed this week to his former patients.

The Carmel physician, at present a patient in a local hospital, explained in his letter that recurring ill health made his decision necessary. He and his attractive wife, Moyra, will take a house on the hospital grounds after the first of the year.

The doctor stated that he had asked his associate, Dr. Hartley G. Dewey, to continue care of his patients. A Cornell University Medical College graduate who served with the Navy during World War I, Dr. Dewey has practiced in California since the 1930's. He left a directorship in an Eastern hospital to come to Yosemite National Park, where for 13 years he was Director of Medical Service and head of Lewis Memorial Hospital.

Dr. McCormick claims a Scottish mother, birthplace and education, and an American father and citizenship. It was his father's wish that brought him to the United States.

In 1948 he opened offices in Carmel, home of his sisters, Miss Anna "Nan" McCormick and Mrs. H. M. Gleason. He has been Medical Officer for the Carmel School District, on the staffs of the two local hospitals, and a member of the national, state and county medical societies.

After receiving degrees of Bachelor of Medicine and Bachelor of Surgery at Glasgow University, he practiced in that city until 1926. He entered private practice in London, later serving as Surgeon to the Metropolitan Police and Medical Officer to the Post Office. He graduated in 1932 as Doctor of Medicine, similar to "passing the Boards" in the United States.

The doctor's only son, Timothy Malcolm McCormick, plans to study medicine when he finishes one more year of U.S. Navy service. Tim's ship is now three weeks out of its San Francisco base on a cruise to Japan.

CHRISTMAS SUNDAY SERVICES AT WAYFARER

Christmas Sunday, December 19, will be observed at the Church of the Wayfarer with identical services at 9:30 and 11:00 o'clock. Mrs. Richard M. Catlin will be the harp soloist, playing two ancient French carols, The Christ Child's Lullaby and Noel de Cluny, and Gruss by Mendelssohn and Ave Verum by Mozart.

The Chapel Singers, directed by John W. Farr, will be heard in Jones' Amid the Snows, a Rose and Rockwood's Christ Was Born Today. Organ selections by Connell K. Carruth will include Bach's From Heaven to Earth I Come, Noel by Daquin, the French carol, Joseph and the Shepherds, and Dethier's Ancient Christmas Carol.

Dr. K. Fillmore Gray will conduct the service and preach on the theme, Christmas Is Our Affair.

A Church School Family Christmas program will be held Monday evening at 7:00 o'clock in the Fellowship Hall under the direction of Miss Annis Quinn. There will be carols, the nativity scene, choral speaking and a dramatization by the children and a filmstrip, The Song the Shepherds Sang. Refreshments will be served by the Susanna Circle.

The church has also scheduled two special Christmas Eve services.

Katie Mallick

Mrs. Katie A. Mallick, 31, a native Carmel resident, died Sunday in a Salinas hospital, having been in failing health for some time. She had been hospitalized for the past two months.

Mrs. Mallick was born in Carmel May 10, 1923, and attended local schools. She made her home here on Santa Rita Street between First and Second avenues. She was a member of the Carmel Mission parish.

She leaves an 11-year-old daughter, Florence Mallick, in addition to her mother, Mrs. Katie Miranda, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Machado and Mrs. Florence Figueroa, all of Carmel.

Requiem Mass was celebrated yesterday morning at the Mission by Msgr. Michael D. O'Connell. Burial was at the Monterey Catholic Cemetery.

To The Editor

840 South David Ave.
Stockton, California
December 15, 1954

Dear Editor:

I would like to have the last two copies of your newspaper, as I am a student in the Stockton College print shop, Stockton, California. I am very much interested in your newspaper as my instructor, Mr. Clifford Geddes, recommended it as one of the best in the State of California. I am sending 26 cents in stamps which I hope will take care of the price of the paper and the mailing cost.

Sincerely yours,
Oscar Howell, Jr.

Carmel Pharmacist And Wife Killed In Auto Collision Mon.

Edward A. DePersis, 38, Carmel pharmacist, and his wife Natalie, 31, were killed early Monday when their car crashed into a switch engine at a railroad crossing on Bayshore Highway near San Jose.

The couple were returning to the Peninsula after a visit with friends in Vallejo when the collision occurred. Mr. DePersis was killed instantly, and his wife, who had been driving at the time of the crash, was pronounced dead on arrival at a San Jose hospital.

Until recently, Mr. and Mrs. DePersis had made their home at Lincoln and Fifth streets in Carmel. This fall, they moved into a home on 17 Mile Drive in Pacific Grove.

DePersis, a native of Binghampton, New York, first came to the Peninsula during World War II, when he was stationed at the Presidio of Monterey. At that time he worked part-time as a pharmacist for Fortier's Drug Store, becoming a full-time employee following his discharge. For the past two and a half years, he had been employed as pharmacist at the Dolores Pharmacy. He and Mrs. DePersis, whose family lives in Encino, were married shortly after his release from the Army.

Funeral services for Mrs. DePersis were held yesterday at Forest Lawn in Glendale. The body of her husband was shipped to his home town of Binghamton, New York, where funeral services are pending.

Carmel Gets Clean Score For S-D Day

President Eisenhower's aim for a 24-hour accident free period was realized 100 percent in Carmel, which came through Safe-Driving Day on Wednesday without so much as a bent bumper on the police docket.

Peninsula-wide, the showing was just short of perfect. Monterey's chance for a clean score was blitzed just 16 minutes after the start of S-D Day, when a drunk driver collided with a parked car and earned himself a choice of a $100 fine or 50 days in the poky. Shortly after noon on Wednesday, highway patrol reported a fenderbrush on the Carmel Hill. These two constituted the entire accident record for the Peninsula.

Paul McKinstry, Carmel S-D Day director, says that the various chiefs of police report that in their observation, people were making a conscious effort to cooperate courteously and to hold down the accident rate to the best of their ability.

"Speaking for the Monterey Peninsula S-D Day directors, I want to extend thanks to Peninsula drivers generally for their all-out cooperation," said McKinstry. "It just shows what can be achieved when everyone takes a share of the responsibility."

FREE KIDS' CHRISTMAS PLAY

Once again the Wharf Theatre is adding its part to the spirit of the season with a free Christmas play for Peninsula children. This year's production is the childhood favorite of fantasy and magic, Jack and the Beanstalk, which will open tomorrow afternoon and play daily matinees through Wednesday at 2:00 o'clock.

FINAL INSTRUCTIONS TO CHRISTMAS CAROLERS

Carolers! Tune up on those God-rest-ye-merrys and Noels, bundle up in warm clothes, bring your flashlight and get in the Christmas spirit Tuesday night, when everybody's invited to go caroling with the Girl Scouts.

There's no age limit on carolers. Anyone between 7 and 97 who can carry a tune in a basket is welcome. However, children under fifth-grade age should be accompanied by an adult.

Carolers are asked to gather at 7:00 o'clock at either Sunset or Woods school, whichever is most convenient. The singers will be divided up into small groups and sent around town for serenading.

Should there be pouring rain Tuesday night, the caroling will be postponed until Wednesday at 7:00, same meeeting places. If it rains Wednesday as well, the expedition will be called off until next year.

Serra School Gives New Christmas Play Sunday At Mission

The public is invited to the first performance at Carmel Mission of a new Christmas play, The First Christmas Crib, by the children of Junipero Serra School at 7:00 o'clock Sunday evening.
